Introducing Joining the Dots: exploring our connected environment

As 2020 draws to a close, we'll be exploring the shifts that this year has brought when it comes to the way we live, work and connect with others.

We'll be focusing on what the future holds for our connected environment, from our cities and infrastructure to connectivity and rural landscapes. We'll be speaking to people around the world, both at NCC Group and externally, about their vision for the connected environment of the future, from how they're adapting to a shifting threat landscape to their thoughts on the role that IoT and emerging technologies will play in our environment in the future.

Towards the end of this year, we'll also be looking ahead to 2021 and exploring how NCC Group, as a business, can continue to play our part in making our world safer and more secure by contributing to the UN Global Goals for Sustainable Development.

Stay tuned for more insights from our experts and partners over the coming months.
